

ACUPUNCTURE

Acupuncture is a procedure in which fine, sterile needles are precisely inserted into the skin, by a skilled and specially trained health practitioner. The purpose is to stimulate peripheral nerves in the body. The therapeutic stimulation of these peripheral nerves assists the body in its natural healing process.

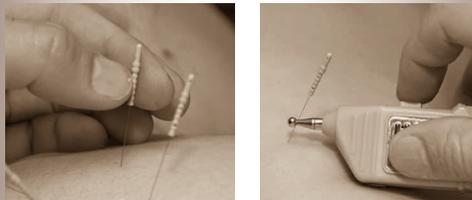

Contemporary Medical Acupuncture is a specialized form of acupuncture in which manual stimulation or a fine current of electricity is applied to the needles after insertion, to further enhance the effectiveness of the treatment. Contemporary Medical Acupuncture is also commonly known as Neurofunctional Acupuncture.

Whether used as a way to promote health, prevent disease and injury, or to facilitate the body's natural healing process acupuncture can help improve your quality of life.

WHY CHOOSE ACUPUNCTURE?

If you are experiencing pain or discomfort related to injury or other health conditions, acupuncture can be an effective way to receive relief. Acupuncture stimulates the body to produce its own pain relieving natural, chemicals called endorphins. The improved energy and biochemical balance produced by acupuncture stimulates the body's natural healing abilities.

Acupuncture is commonly used in conjunction with other forms of alternative health practices such as massage therapy, chiropractic care, and physiotherapy to enhance healing and wellness, and to reduce pain.
